Manhattan Pied-à-terre for a new Chicago apartment

Interior designer Sarah Vaile remembers eyeing a New York City apartment—one with bold colors and a personality as distinct as its chic owner—in a 2014 issue of House Beautiful, and tucking it away for future design inspiration. Years later, in a serendipitous turn of events, the woman she'd seen in the magazine—a stylish figure now in her 30s—just moved to Chicago.

Inside a playful, bohemian beach house on Martha's Vineyard

"I would follow Jessica to the end of the Earth," Johanna Hynes says, referring to her designer, Jessica Stambaugh. The Nashville-based principal of JS Interiors designed Hynes' Boston wellness studio, Asana Charlestown, her family's townhouse—and most recently, their beach chalet in Katama on Martha's Vineyard.

Modern Texas home is beautiful and completely kid-friendly

Making a modern home that's both kid-friendly and beautiful is no simple task. But for one family of six in Austin, Texas, it was crucial. So they enlisted designer Andrew Howard to turn the modern home into a cozy space everyone can enjoy. At around 10,000 square feet, the five-bedroom, seven-bathroom home needed both cosmetic changes and structural tweaks.

Tudor-style home in Chicago's North Shore is chock-full

From a white carved mantel and twin vanities to a pair of bar stools and an ebonized dining table. Like many during the pandemic, newlyweds Anthony and Chelsea Campagni marked 2020 as the right time to abandon city life in Chicago in favor of the picturesque North Shore suburbs. The couple had been sharing Anthony's condo in the Wicker Park neighborhood.
